Much valuable information and data could be secured in this way without expense. They are now not cognizant of the laws existence, and day after day they see a bright, interesting pupil fail in physical and mental strength because of burdens too heavy for childish shoulders--burdens resting there by virtue of the states refusal to grant adequate home aliment for mothers not adjudged unworthy. A tragic tale of such a defeated thirteenyear-old girl, has just been left on my desk by a teacher who, had she known of this law, could have saved the child. A tremendous opportunity has been given the boards of education in Ohio to become pioneers in the work of preserving for the child, home care and influence. If they have the...
