METHODS IN SOIL ANALYSIS: TECHNICAL BULLETIN (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Methods in Soil Analysis: Technical Bulletin Much importance has been attributed in recent years to the analysis of soils for total constituents. The literature covering the methods for such analysis, while rather extensive, is scattered, and in many cases the methods described are not well suited to rapid routine practice. In view of these facts it has been thought that the compilation and publication of the methods used and in part evolved in the soils laboratory of the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station may be of value to others desiring methods which are rapid and at the same time sufficiently accurate to meet the requirements of most soil investigations. The methods are presented in sufficient detail to permit their employment by those who have not had extensive experience in quantitative work. In the development of these methods access has been had to the methods employed by the New York, Illinois, and Wisconsin experiment stations. Use has also been made of material from procedures as published by the Ohio, Tennessee, and other experiment stations. Much has been adapted from bulletin 422 of the United States Geological Survey. Most of the methods herein described have been proved reliable by their successful use in several hundred analyses of various types of West Virginia soils. In sampling any given area three composite samples are ordinarily chosen, representing different depths as follows: sample A, 0 to 6 2/3 inches; sample B, 6 2/3 to 20 inches; sample C, 20 to 40 inches. A one-inch soil auger is used in securing samples. Sample A is a composite of from 20 to 30 borings, so chosen as to furnish as nearly as possible a...
